A Modern Guide to Financial Shocks and Crises

Edited by Giovanni Ferri and Vincenzo D'Apice, LUMSA University, Italy

Offering a comprehensive guide to financial shocks and crises, this book explores their increasing occurrence in current market economies, as well as their power to wrench the macroeconomy. The book discusses three critical questions: what causes financial shocks; which channels may exacerbate their impact; and what policies could help avoid them or limit their negative effect on the economy and society at large.

Cost-Benefit Analysis and Dementia

New Interventions

Robert J. Brent, Fordham University, New York, US

'The book offers a fascinating paradigm to reflect upon dementia interventions, promising to widen the lens of interested governments, public health and policy makers, as well as clinicians alike. By interlinking concepts of protecting human rights, preventing elder abuse, caring for persons living with dementia, all contributing to improving global health and economy, this book offers a solid rationale for an international United Nations convention on the human rights for older persons.'

COVID-19 and the Response of Central Banks

Coping with Challenges in Sub-Saharan Africa

Edited by Salewa Olawoye, York University, Toronto, Canada

'Olawoye has assembled an excellent group of articles which show the different impact of monetary policy in African countries that are members of a currency union, or monetary sovereign. Her work underscores the significant, on the ground differences in their approaches to dealing with COVID-19, and the limitations imposed by monetary union.'

Economic Myths and Magic

Debunking the Illusions of Conventional Economic Thinking

Norman C. Miller, Miami University, US

'In Economic Myths and Magic Norman Miller provides new takes on a host of economic questions that many of us had regarded as settled. Not everyone who picks up the book will agree with all of Professor Miller's arguments, but those who read it at all carefully will come away with a lot more knowledge than they started with, and they will be quite entertained in the process.'

Handbook on Critical Political Economy and Public Policy

Edited by Christoph Scherrer, University of Kassel, Germany, Ana Garcia, Institute of the Pontifical Catholic University of Rio de Janeiro and Federal Rural University of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil and Joscha Wullweber, Witten/Herdecke University, Germany

'Critical political economy has done much to debunk mainstream myths surrounding the "efficiency" of the market, the neutrality of the international division of labour, the desirability of "liberalisation", and the implication that there are no alternatives to neoliberalism. Those criticisms are explained clearly in this brilliant volume; but the authors also sketch the contours of democratic and socially responsible forms of production, exchange, and social organisation. This is an indispensable volume for students, scholars, and activists working on global development.'

Work and Employment Relations in Southern Europe

The Impact of De-regulation, Organizational Change and Social Fragmentation on Worker Representation and Action

Edited by Carlos J. Fernández Rodríguez, Universidad Autónoma de Madrid, Spain and Miguel Martínez Lucio, University of Manchester, UK

'This is an important and timely book. The immediate effects of the 2008 financial crisis on the economies of Southern Europe are well documented, but the longer term consequences on industrial relations are less well understood. This edited collection presents a wide ranging exploration of the effects of crisis on employment emphasising in particular changes to the collective regulation of work. An important overview of the complex and changing dynamics of these key economies.'

Handbook on City Logistics and Urban Freight

Edited by Edoardo Marcucci, Valerio Gatta, Roma Tre University, Italy and Molde University College, Norway and Michela Le Pira, University of Catania, Italy

'This Handbook is impressive, extensive, and very current. There are many themes that challenge us today, centred on decarbonisation, supply chain constraints and institutional reform, to make us rethink how we might better embed urban freight into the changing fabric of our cities. The contributions to city logistics as seen as a multi-governance structure together with the latest developments in methods through digital twins to focus as much on short-term operational issues in contrast to the longer-term planning and policy issues is impressive.'

Handbook on the Political Economy of Health Systems

Edited by Joan Costa-Font, London School of Economics and Political Science, UK, Alberto Batinti, La Sapienza University of Rome and Gilberto Turati, Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore, Italy

'Health systems and reforms in the health sector play a fundamental role in policy-making and in the political process, as emphasized during the COVID-19 pandemic crisis. This book collects important contributions to develop an innovative view of the political economy of health systems, where political and economic factors interact in determining policy decisions in the health care domain. The book provides an excellent unified, broad and thorough vision of one of the most promising and interdisciplinary areas of the current and future political economy debate.'

Handbook of Big Data Research Methods

Edited by Shahriar Akter, University of Wollongong, Australia and Samuel Fosso Wamba, Toulouse Business School, France

'Big data research methods have gained dramatic momentum in the world. Researchers and practitioners extend this line of research constantly by producing journals, posts, news articles and podcasts. However, there is a paucity of a book that covers descriptive, diagnostic, predictive and prescriptive method-based research papers under one umbrella. This is one of those books which will immerse a reader in the past, present and future of big data analytics methods. It is an exceptional book that is grounded in evidence and meaningful to practice.'

Regional Economic Systems after COVID-19

Actionable Insights for an Equitable and Resilient Recovery

Edited by Fred Olayele, Carleton University, Canada

Healing the economic and social wounds inflicted by the COVID-19 pandemic will take time, but the long road to recovery presents a unique opportunity to build back better. To catalyze change and succeed in the post-pandemic era, economic development policy and practice must see the crisis as an opportunity to rethink and redesign regional economic systems. This will involve creating a shared understanding of – and policies to address – the differential impacts of the pandemic across occupations, industries, and socioeconomic groups. This book explores the challenges and opportunities heralded by the virus in the broadest sense and presents case studies on equitable and inclusive economic recoveries.
