Why publish with Elgar?

A unique publishing experience

As an independent press, Edward Elgar Publishing offers a uniquely responsive service tailored to each project.

From initial commissioning, through to marketing the finished book, our dedicated teams work closely with our authors – whether newly published or well established – to keep them involved and informed.

We are dedicated to reducing the impact of our publishing on the environment and are proud to have signed up to the UN's Sustainable Development Goals (SDG) Publishers Compact. We also work in partnership with organisations such as EIFL and GOALI to enable access to knowledge in developing and transition economy countries.

Your work will be part of a broad, diverse and inclusive list which reflects the wide range of research and perspectives within the subject areas we publish.

In good company

Your book will sit in good company – many of our authors are recognised as leading scholars and professionals in their fields. Numbered amongst them are several Nobel Laureates. Many of our books have won prestigious awards and consistently receive global acclaim for their originality, quality and impact.

Effective and efficient decision-making

We use peer-review by subject specialists to ensure that our research monographs meet a high standard of scholarship. We respond quickly to proposal submissions and aim to complete our assessments within a few weeks of receipt. Your dedicated Commissioning Editor will keep you fully informed throughout the process.

Production quality

Our experienced production team will produce a book you will be proud of. We use UK based copy-editors to ensure our manuscripts are of optimum quality and are finished to the very highest standard. Your Desk Editor will be in close liaison during the processing and production stages, involving you in important decisions such as book cover design.

International dissemination & marketing

We work with academics, booksellers, professionals and libraries around the globe, reaching over 140 countries.

From e-catalogues and conferences to our eBook platform, email campaigns and social media channels, information on your book will be disseminated widely by our international marketing team. Our well-established global reputation will get your book noticed and we will ensure it is readily available across the world.

We recognise the importance of getting your work cited. To maximise visibility our books are included in the Thomson Reuters' Book Citation Index and Scopus.

Society partners & international organisations

Edward Elgar Publishing enjoys successful collaboration with a number of society partners including the Asian Development Bank, United Nations International Development Organization and the IUCN Academy of Environmental Law.

Our partners choose us for our reliable and responsible service, the majority publishing with us over many years, benefiting from the continuity of service.

Handbook on Shrinking Cities

Edited by Karina Pallagst, Technische Universität Kaiserslautern, Germany, Marco Bontje, University of Amsterdam, the Netherlands, Emmanuèle Cunningham Sabot, Ecole Normale Supérieure (ENS), Paris, France and René Fleschurz, Technische Universität Kaiserslautern, Germany

'Our cities represent very comprehensive social ecosystems – a mosaic consisting of diverse structures interlinked by the veins of infrastructure shaped by multiple actions of various actors. The Handbook on Shrinking Cities edited by Karina Pallagst, Marco Bontje, Emmanuèle Cunningham-Sabot and René Fleschurz presents a similar picture. This is a book in which the synergy between chapters written by numerous authors creates a multi-faceted picture of shrinking cities and which will be of interest to a wide range of readers.'

Megaprojects for Megacities

A Comparative Casebook

Edited by John D. Landis, University of Pennsylvania, US

Megaprojects for Megacities is a collection of 14 international case studies of transportation, urban development, and environmental megaprojects completed during the last ten years in North America, Asia and Europe. It goes beyond the previous megaproject literature to look at how and why each project was conceived, planned, engineered, financed, and delivered, and at how particular planning and delivery practices shaped outcomes.

Rethinking Socialism

Compass for a Sustainability Revolution

Klaus Dörre, Friedrich-Schiller-University Jena, Germany

'Rethinking Socialism is a tour de force. As long as we have capitalism there will be visions of socialism; as capitalism transforms itself so the visions change. Klaus Dörre has brought socialism into the 21st century by addressing climate change, digitization and pandemics among other pathologies with concrete utopias aimed at realizing the UN's sustainable development goals. The world desperately needs such brave and innovative thinking.'

A Research Agenda for Far-Right Violence and Extremism

Edited by Rohan Gunaratna, Nanyang Technology University, Singapore and Katalin Pethö-Kiss, Counter Terrorism Information and Criminal Analysis Centre, Budapest, Hungary

'Rohan Gunaratna is one of the world's leading scholars and policy influencers on the topic of militant jihadism – his expertise long predates the attacks of September 11, 2001. Now he and his co-editor Katalin Petho-Kiss have set a scholarly standard for a new generational global threat: that of far-right extremism and terrorist violence. This deeply researched volume, containing outstanding contributions from multiple scholar-practitioners, covers the panoply of increasingly globalized right-wing movements and threats. It is a must-read for scholars and practitioners who wish to better grasp this emerging threat, along with strategies for tackling it.'

Strategy for Sustainability Transitions

Governance, Community and Environment

Kristof Van Assche, University of Alberta, Canada, Raoul Beunen, Open University, the Netherlands and Monica Gruezmacher, University of Alberta, Canada

'This excellent volume examines a key question of our time – the possibility of sustainability transitions – through an evolutionary governance lens. In addition to exploring how climate change, biodiversity and energy crises, water and food scarcity require societal transitions, it keeps a firm eye focused on the lessons that have been learned about why societal transitions occur (or not) and especially on the role played in these processes by governing institutions writ large. Drawing on earlier work by the authors and others in the field, the book introduces and applies the idea of a "governance path" in assessing how likely any sustainability transition might be and in what directions any such transition is likely to go. Concluding with a discussion of the interplay between governance and policy strategies, the book highlights the need for both good governance and good strategies if any kind of successful transition is to occur.'

A World History of Political Thought

Second Edition

J. Babb, University of Tokyo, Japan

Acclaim for the first edition:

'This is an amazing book. It is a wide-ranging and often fairly detailed survey of political thought around the world that genuinely takes a global standpoint. It is not that the Western tradition is front and center and then occasionally other views enter; the author engages with the various traditions on their own terms and puts them side by side. There is no book out there that is remotely like this. The fields of political theory and political philosophy will benefit enormously from having this book available.'

Handbook of Aid and Development

Edited by Raj M. Desai, Brookings Institution, Shantayanan Devarajan and Jennifer L. Tobin, Georgetown University, Washington, DC, US

'Aid is important in development for two reasons. First it provides additional resources in finance and knowhow to poor countries which, if well used, could aid their development. The key is of course in "if well used." Second, the study of aid and its outcomes can shed light on the development process itself, which could help in the design of development policy in general. Both of these dimensions are present in this excellent volume, with contributions from the leaders in the field. It will take its place among the standard reference volumes in development studies.'

Handbook on the Governance and Politics of Water Resources

Edited by Oliver Fritsch, Murdoch University, Australia and David Benson, University of Exeter, Penryn, UK

'This Handbook is a welcome addition to efforts to provide a comprehensive, multidisciplinary overview of water resources issues and challenges in the 21st century. Especially appreciated is the inclusion of numerous perspectives on the impacts and implications of climate change and increasing demands on this resource. The contributors focus on economic and non-regulatory tools as well as cross-national collaborations.'

Research Handbook on Conflict Prevention

Edited by Timo Kivimäki, University of Bath, UK and Sejong Institute, Seoul, Republic of Korea

'Conflict prevention has in recent years become an increasingly multidimensional and multilayered concept. The handbook edited by Timo Kivimäki offers novel perspectives on the theory and practice of conflict prevention and transformation. Today, there is a growing need to develop new means and resources to tackle violent conflicts before they escalate into large-scale humanitarian disasters as has happened in Ukraine and Gaza. The world needs a new culture of conflict prevention and, first of all, a new commitment of national leaders to turn it into reality.'

Research Handbook on Program Evaluation

Edited by Kathryn E. Newcomer, The George Washington University and Steven W. Mumford, University of New Orleans, US

'This book deserves a place on the bookshelf of everyone engaged in evaluation- evaluators, evaluation managers, evaluation educators and evaluation researchers. It provides comprehensive and up to date coverage of key concepts and practices in evaluation, such as evaluation use, evaluative thinking, values in evaluation, using theories of change, mixed methods, experimental designs, engagement and participation. It also provides a useful introduction to applications, methods and concepts that might be less familiar such as principles-based evaluation, equitable evaluation, real-time evaluation, futures thinking and big data. The distinguishing feature of the book is the clear and thorough coverage of the issues, providing an overview of its key concepts, development over time and variations, as well as the personal insights from the experienced and informed authors of each chapter. Reading through each chapter feels like being in a masterclass on the topic.'

Responding to Uprisings, Pandemic and War

Edited by Anis Ben Brik, Hamid Bin Khalifa University, Qatar

'In this important and timely volume, Anis Ben Brik assembles a group of experts to assess the challenges and opportunities posed by the aftermath of the Arab Spring and the pandemic to governance in the Arab world. Collectively, the chapters focus on how these twin crises have shaped the lived experiences of marginalized groups and highlight the key role of politics in shaping policies towards the region's most vulnerable populations.'

Migration Statecraft

The European Migration and Development Regime

Kristof Tamas, Ministry of Justice, Sweden

'This book extends a highly valuable and much needed analysis of two rationales that need to be combined within the school of International Relations: classical realism and constructivism. Through the concept "leveraged statecraft" in EU context, the author seeks to bridge two contradictory objectives: how to contain irregular migration and promote poverty reduction at the same time?'

Varieties of Capitalism and the Political Economy of Differentiated Integration in Europe

Rafał Riedel, University of Opole, Poland and Johannes Gutenberg-Universität in Mainz, Germany and Jakub Anusik, University of Łódź and University of Opole, Poland

'The authors provide a fascinating account of differentiated European integration on the basis of national varieties of capitalism in Germany, Poland, Switzerland and the UK. The four case studies are presented with great methodological diligence, intellectual insight and theoretical reflexivity. This book sheds new light on a very diverse, yet closely connected Europe.'

Spatial Planning Systems in Europe

Comparison and Trajectories

Edited by Vincent Nadin, Delft University of Technology, the Netherlands, Giancarlo Cotella, Politecnico di Torino, Italy and Peter Schmitt, Stockholm University, Sweden

'Incisive, insightful, and indisputably the most current and comprehensive treatise on spatial planning on the European continent. Written by a team of Europe's leading planning scholars, the book does much more than characterize and contrast some 250 planning instruments and 31 planning structures in the European Union, but brings clarity to the nuanced concepts of territorial cohesion, balanced development, subsidiarity and indeed the distinctive meaning of the term spatial planning itself. In doing so it provides a conceptual foundation for assessing whether the European Union is progressing towards a more sustainable, equitable, and prosperous European continent. The book is a must read for students of planning systems all over the globe and especially for those who seek to understand, or strive to meet, the spatial complexities of the European experiment.'

Rethinking Neighborhoods

Connections and Cohesion

William A.V. Clark, University of California, Los Angeles, US

'Neighborhoods matter! Drawing on a long career of urban scholarship, this book by Bill Clark provides a fascinating review of the social science on neighborhoods: how they emerge and change, how people sort into them, and why this matters for social mobility, health, general wellbeing, and society as a whole. In the face of concern that work-from-home will reshape urban life, Rethinking Neighborhoods: Connections and Cohesion shows how neighborhoods have and will continue to be an extremely important geography for understanding society.'

Like a Path in Tall Grasses

Edited by Kenjus T. Watson, American University, Washington D.C., Nora Cisneros, California State University, Bakersfield, Lindsay Pérez Huber, California State University, Long Beach and Verónica Vélez, Western Washington University, US

This cutting-edge Handbook goes beyond discourses of equity, inclusion, and diversity, carving a space for critical discussions about the relationships between Black, Indigenous, People of Color (BIPOC) and the university. In doing so, it forges new paths and alternative conceptual starting points to consider in making a commitment to social justice in higher education.

Digital Media and Grassroots Anti-Corruption

Contexts, Platforms and Data of Anti-Corruption Technologies Worldwide

Edited by Alice Mattoni, University of Bologna, Italy

'Political power and technology may benefit society but are also readily abused. Alice Mattoni looks beyond social media in anti-corruption protests to analyze anti-corruption technology in diverse and rapidly evolving forms. She raises questions regarding transparency, social mobilization, and accountability – and also of the vulnerability of citizens challenging corrupt interests. She shows why we should not be dazzled by technology's reach but also must understand its roles within fundamental dynamics of systemic power.'

Elgar Encyclopedia of Corruption and Society

Edited by Luís de Sousa, Instituto de Ciências Sociais da Universidade de Lisboa, Portugal and Susana Coroado, University of Antwerp, Belgium

'The Elgar Encyclopedia of Corruption and Society enables the reader to steer through a multifaceted, often baffling subject matter. Luís de Sousa and Susana Coroado pooled renowned experts to produce short, clear and useful entries on the various aspects of corruption as is employed nowadays and is likely to become prominent in the immediate future, as well as less known forms it may take in specific systems and relatively new arenas that ensued from globalization. The result is a remarkable volume that is an essential tool not only to students of the various disciplines that study corruption, but to readers interested in what has become a central concern in the world we live in.'
