Handbook on Labour Markets in Transition

Promoting Resilience in a World in Flux

Edited by Stéphane Carcillo, Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), Sciences Po, Paris, France and Institute of Labor Economics (IZA), Germany and Stefano Scarpetta, Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), France, Institute of Labor Economics (IZA), Germany and Mercatorum University, Italy

'In a world of accelerating labor market transitions, fixing what gets broken after it has happened is no basis for policy. We must anticipate change, support adaptation, and build resilience. Staggering in its scope and ambition, this Handbook offers evidence and tools to policymakers striving to envision and shape the future of work.'

A Companion to the European Electricity Market

Market Design and Public Policies for Decarbonisation

Guido Cervigni, Enrico Tesio and Francesco Volpato, DFC Economics, Milan, Italy

'By thoroughly covering power market economics, this volume provides readers with the ability to understand and investigate the benefits and possibly the deficiencies of the 25-plus-year history of national and regional markets in the European Union. Readers may also be motivated to understand and contemplate the major interaction of clean/renewable generation on new demand (EV battery charging, HVAC preheating-cooling and other types of storage - like-load demands with intertemporal degrees of freedom) that may be amply capable in the near future to modulate a sizable portion of electricity consumption dynamically so as to follow and compensate for non-schedulable and volatile renewable generation.'

– Michael Caramanis, Boston University, USA

Beyond Innovation Hotspots

Clusters for Competitiveness and Transformation in Real Regions

Edited by Matthias Kiese, Ruhr University Bochum, Rasmus C. Beck, Duisburg Business and Innovation, Dirk Fornahl, Friedrich Schiller University Jena, Germany and Christian Ketels, Stockholm School of Economics, Sweden

'An insightful exploration of industrial clusters, this book provides an overview of the current reality of clusters from both a theoretical and, most importantly, an empirical perspective, focusing on specific industries and regions. Essential for academics, policymakers, and entrepreneurs, it illuminates the strategies behind successful clusters and their impact on economic growth.'

Regions, Cities and the Circular Economy

Theory and Practice

Edited by Sébastien Bourdin, EM Normandie Business School and Chairholder of the European Chair of Excellence "Circular Economy and Territories", André Torre, University of Paris-Saclay, INRAE, France and Eveline van Leeuwen, Wageningen University and Amsterdam Institute for Advanced Metropolitan Solutions, the Netherlands

'According to the United Nations, by 2050, 70 percent of the world's population is likely to live in urban areas. Cities are currently responsible for 75 percent of natural resource consumption, 50 percent of global waste, and 70 percent of CO2 emissions. To promote more sustainable urban development, new economic models need to be implemented. This book therefore has the merit of shedding light on the role that a circular economy model can play in the transition of cities and territorial entities to more sustainable trajectories.'

Transforming Poor Economies

Effective Development Strategies for Agriculture and Industry

Keijiro Otsuka, Kobe University, Institute of Developing Economies JETRO and Asian Development Bank Institute, Japan

'Keijiro Otsuka's book, Transforming Poor Economies, like so many of his earlier publications, addresses the most fundamental questions facing developing nations: what works and what does not in developing countries around the world. The book explores Southeast Asia, South Asia and Africa in both agriculture and industry and in the upstream and downstream sectors. This is a book that all of those interested in development should read!'

The Rise and Fall of Public-Private Partnerships

Finance, Infrastructure and Developing Countries

James Leigland, SAEx International Management Limited, Mauritius

'James Leigland spent many years at the World Bank, and has more than two decades of experience working on public-private infrastructure design, regulation and management. That deep expertise makes The Rise and Fall of Public-Private Partnerships, his damning account of thirty years of donor engagement in infrastructure PPPs, all the more compelling. As the hype over trillions in private finance for climate and development infrastructure reaches a pitch that could deafen ears, the book could not be better timed. Leigland's call for re-evaluation and reform is both vital and urgent.'

Elgar Encyclopedia of Corporate Governance

Edited by Thomas Clarke, University of Technology, Sydney, Australia, Wafa Khlif, TBS Business School, Barcelona, Spain and Coral Ingley, Auckland University of Technology, New Zealand

'This is a comprehensive and compelling encyclopedic analysis of the elements of corporate governance. The work critically considers the origins of corporate governance in early philosophical approaches. The analysis progresses through different theoretical approaches and continues on to examine the critical contemporary issues of governance. Deploying the insights of a wide array of governance scholars the work presents a convincing portrayal of the complex problems of governance and provides guidance towards pathways for a more sustainable future.'

Qualitative Comparative Analysis

Learning from Cases

Roel Rutten, Tilburg University and European Regional Affairs Consultants (ERAC), the Netherlands

'Qualitative Comparative Analysis: Learning from Cases offers a comprehensive introduction to qualitative comparative analysis (QCA), emphasizing the proper grounding of the approach in the interplay of case knowledge, context, and concepts. Roel Rutten utilizes key insights from Critical Realism to rebalance QCA, which he argues has become too slanted toward large-N cross-case analysis and fuzzy sets, to the exclusion of case and substantive knowledge. While not everyone will agree with Rutten, all can learn from his challenges to current QCA practices.'

Handbook of Case Study Research in the Social Sciences

Edited by Peter Rule, Stellenbosch University and Vaughn M. John, University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa

'Case study research is ubiquitous in the field of adult and continuing education. The editors did a great service to the field through their book, Your Guide to Case Study Research (2011). This Handbook takes understandings of case study research to a new level by expanding and deepening engagement with case study research across disciplines and fields. This is a welcome addition to the literature and will, like their previous book, become an indispensable reference for case study researchers globally.'

How to Keep Your Research Project on Track

Insights from When Things Go Wrong
2nd edition

Edited by Keith Townsend, Griffith University, Australia and Mark N.K. Saunders, University of Birmingham, UK and University of Pretoria, South Africa

'If you ever thought doing academic research was a load of gobbledegook written from the back of a beer mat, these editors prove novel ideas can start from such a premise. This is the second edition of what is a vital guide for new, early career and experienced researchers in the social science and business fields. It charts real-world stories from problems of access, student-supervisor dynamics, finding time, dealing with writers-block, to what happens to you and a research project after you emigrate to another country. This is a highly engaging and enjoyable volume for all who do research.'
