Handbook on Risk and Inequality

Edited by Dean Curran, University of Calgary, Canada

'A timely examination of the intersection of risks and inequalities in our "world at risk", this Handbook brings together innovative theoretical analysis and significant empirical insights. It wholly fulfils its promise to address a gap in the current debate and to delineate novel approaches for understanding the effects of man-made risks across groups, domains, and societies.'

The Law of Treaties,

An Introduction, 2nd edition

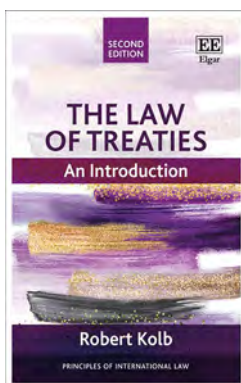

Robert Kolb, University of Geneva, Switzerland

Acclaim for the first edition:

'Robert Kolb's The Law of Treaties: An Introduction is the best of its kind. Though encyclopaedic and sweeping in its breadth, the book brings out, with the clarity and insistence that characterize all of Kolb's writings, the underlying principles of state consent on the one hand with pacta sunt servanda and good faith on the other.'

Republican Global Constitutionalism

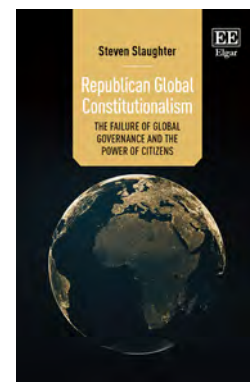

The Failure of Global Governance and the Power of Citizens

Steven Slaughter, Deakin University, Australia

'Steven Slaughter offers a compelling argument for seeking a middle path to a better international politics. It is a path that aims to avoid what he sees as the too-totalizing control of a full world government, and the ineffectiveness of most attempts at robust global governance. His alternative, Republican Global Constitutionalism, emphasizes the evolution of treaty-based, constitution-like governance in some aspects of international politics, and especially the roles that an active "global citizenry" could play in advancing and transforming global cooperation. This book is highly recommended for those seeking a sophisticated but accessible entry into dialogues on the transformation and/or surpassing of the liberal international order.'

Teaching American Government and Politics

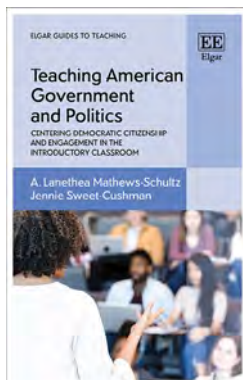

Centering Democratic Citizenship and Engagement in the Introductory Classroom

A. Lanethea Mathews-Schultz, Muhlenberg College and Jennie Sweet-Cushman, Chatham University, US

'This book will be an important resource for faculty. All-too-often, students are unable to use the knowledge they gain in US politics courses to engage effectively in the political process. The attention to civic skills and motivations that this book provides is an important corrective – one that is required if we are to strengthen representative democracy and citizen engagement in the United States.'

Advancing Co-creation in Local Governance

The Role of Coping Strategies and Constructive Hybridization

Edited by Asbjørn Røiseland, Oslo Metropolitan University - OsloMet and NORD University, Norway, Eva Sørensen and Jacob Torfing, Roskilde University, Denmark

'This book makes a great contribution to the advancement of co-creation theory in public administration. Grounding its theorizing in empirical analysis and focussing on co-creation in local governance, it introduces key concepts and enriches the literature with fresh cases from a region of the world that is at the forefront of public sector innovations. It is exactly at this administrative, political, and social level where it is possible to fulfill the promise of co-creation, transitioning it from a marginal practice to becoming a core strategy for public governance and administration.'

Handbook of Research on Entrepreneurship and Conflict

Edited by Wim Naudé, RWTH Aachen University, Aachen, Germany and Bernadette Power, University College Cork, Ireland

'In an era rife with conflict throughout every level of society, this pathbreaking Handbook paves important new ground in analyzing how entrepreneurship can be both a positive response but also a concerning trigger for conflict. This Handbook draws on a broad-spectrum of expert authors spanning a diverse range of backgrounds and scholarly fields to shed new light on the links between entrepreneurship and conflict. This is a must read not just for entrepreneurship scholarship but for all of the social sciences and thought leaders concerned with the stability and sustainability of democratic society.'

Beyond Bilateralism

A Theory of State Responsibility for Breaches of Non-bilateral Obligations

Sarah Thin, Radboud University, Nijmegen, the Netherlands

'Sarah Thin's book provides an excellent contribution to putting on good theoretical ground the topic of non-bilateral responsibility. She does so by developing a theory of non-bilateral responsibility, testing it against the law on international responsibility and the practice of international courts and tribunals, and exploring the implications for the international legal system. The potential impact of her research for the broader field of the law of international responsibility could be quite significant.'

What Have Populists Done for Us?

Exclusionary Populism in Power in Israel and Beyond

Dani Filc, Ben-Gurion University of the Negev and Amit Avigur-Eshel, Sapir Academic College, Israel

'Filc and Avigur-Eshel offer a concise analysis of the Likud party's right-wing governments in Israel. They employ the Gramscian concept of hegemonic project to decipher how Likud's exclusionary populism succeeds in juggling neo-liberal growth policy and wide-spread social support, as well as to expose the inherent crisis tendencies involved. This is one of the most intriguing accounts of political sociology cum political economy that I have read in a long time.'

Handbook of Urban Politics and Policy

Edited by Ronald K. Vogel, Toronto Metropolitan University, Canada

'The chapters in this volume push the boundaries of urban politics in much needed, insightful, and timely ways. With an impressive group of scholars, the focus is multidisciplinary, multiscale, comparative, and cutting edge. Here urban governance becomes more than structure to include social movements and citizen participation. Policy topics include traditional foci such as housing and development but also increasingly important and now urban concerns such as climate change, pandemics, intersectionality, immigration, race, aging, and sexual identities. The Handbook is an excellent read for both scholars and students wanting to know about the expanding boundaries of urban politics.'

Research Handbook on Meaningful Human Control of Artificial Intelligence Systems

Edited by Giulio Mecacci, Radboud University, the Netherlands, Daniele Amoroso, University of Cagliari, Italy, Luciano Cavalcante Siebert, David Abbink, Jeroen van den Hoven and Filippo Santoni de Sio, Delft University of Technology, the Netherlands

'This book is an outstanding collection of original essays on an extremely important contemporary set of problems pertaining to human control of AI systems. How can such control be engineered, and what is the relationship between accounts of the control implicated in human moral responsibility and those pertinent to AI systems? These questions and others are explored from an interdisciplinary perspective. The authors are first-rate and the editors have done a very fine job of organizing the collection. Very highly recommended!'

Pathways to Positive Public Administration

An International Perspective

Edited by Patrick Lucas, University of New South Wales, Canberra, Australia, Tina Nabatchi, Syracuse University, US and Janine O’Flynn, Australian National University, Australia, Paul ‘t Hart, Utrecht University, the Netherlands

‘The popular and academic literature is replete with examples of the failure of government, and the public servants responsible for providing services to the public. This collection of studies is a useful counter to that conventional wisdom. The examples contained here point out that governments can and do deliver the goods, and do so in settings where poor governance is assumed to be endemic.’

TEXTBOOK

Advanced Introduction to Sustainability Transitions

Frank W. Geels, University of Manchester, UK

‘Given the wicked environmental problems facing modern society, from ocean acidification and water insecurity to species extinction and climate change, there may be no better time to grapple with the topic of sustainability transitions. I’ve long considered Professor Geels the Guru of Sociotechnical Transitions Theory, and in this masterpiece, he doesn’t disappoint. The book’s topics are as complex as they are compelling, including a novel and original synthetic framework and crosscutting themes such as agency and actors, acceleration and geopolitics. It’s a highly readable, concise, and clever amalgamation of hundreds of academic studies and thirty years of work.’

Handbook on Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion in Public Administration

Edited by Meghna Sabharwal, Sean A. McCandless, The University of Texas at Dallas and Shilpa Viswanath, City University of New York, US

‘The Handbook on Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion in Public Administration is comprehensive in its examination of the perspectives and methods of DEI. With contributions from scholars with a wealth of knowledge and experience, this text expands what we know about DEI and how we can apply it across different and complex contexts and communities. At a time when DEI is under attack, this text is well positioned to help scholars and practitioners recognize the intellectual contributions of equity, while also illuminating the implications of not engaging in this important work. There is so much to gain from this Handbook and it comes at such an important time in the field and society at large.’

Educating for Democracy

The Case for Participatory Budgeting in Schools

Edited by Daniel Schugurensky and Tara Bartlett, Arizona State University, US

'With democracy under attack world-wide, this book could not come at a better time. Civic education has long been seen as a means for restoring commitments to democratic institutions, but when it comes to civic engagement, boosting political participation has always been a difficult nut to crack. Enter school-based participatory budgeting. As an approach to democratic renewal, the power of PB is well-known. As a pedagogy, it holds particular promise. This book offers a much-needed roadmap with dozens of practical how-to examples. Teachers, principals, academics, and policymakers who want to know what school participatory budgeting is and how it can help strengthen democracy should all read this gem of a book.'

A World History of Political Thought

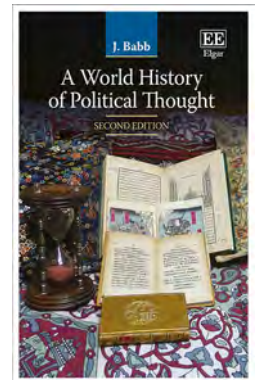

Second Edition

J. Babb, University of Tokyo, Japan

Acclaim for the first edition:

'This is an amazing book. It is a wide-ranging and often fairly detailed survey of political thought around the world that genuinely takes a global standpoint. It is not that the Western tradition is front and center and then occasionally other views enter; the author engages with the various traditions on their own terms and puts them side by side. There is no book out there that is remotely like this. The fields of political theory and political philosophy will benefit enormously from having this book available.'

The EU Reexamined

A Governance Model in Transition

Edited by Jörn Axel Kämmerer, Bucerius Law School, Hamburg, Hans-Bernd Schäfer, Bucerius Law School Hamburg, and University of Hamburg, Germany and Kaushik Basu, Cornell University and SC Johnson College of Business, Ithaca, New York, and former Chief Economist of the World Bank, Washington, D.C., US

Adopting an interdisciplinary approach, this book examines the experience of the European Union in bringing multiple sovereign nations under a common economic umbrella, and goes on to ask if the EU can serve as a blueprint for other regions that are striving for economic integration or if it is 'too unique' to be emulated. To this end, the book draws on contemporary and historical law and politics as well as economic analyses.
